SWEPT TO SEA ON OIL DRUM SAVING INJURED COMRADE

Incendiary Set Two Homes Ablaze At Midnight--One Is Razed To Ground

WITH UNCONSCIOUS MAN IN ARMS DRIFTS FOR AN HOUR

Buoyed up by an oil drum, and supporting an unconscious companion in the water, Joe Coster was carried out to sea by a racing ebb tide near Oleum yesterday, with Ed Olson in his arms. Both were saved by a man who put out in a boat and reached the imperiled men only after they had floated more than a mile from shore.

Olson, riding on a car load of oil drums, was knocked from the car with three drums by a sagging telephone wire. He fell unconscious from the wharf into the water with a gash in his head. Coster jumped in after him, kept his head above water, and clung to the floating oil drum.

The accident happened at the Union Oil works about 11 o'clock in the morning. The men were in the water for more than an hour. Olson was revived and suffered no serious injury save the gash in his scalp. Coster was unhurt except that he suffered from exhaustion and the exposure to the cold water. He is a railway man and was working on the train from which Olson was knocked. Both men live at Rodeo.

The man who put out in a boat to rescue the two drowning men was a Union Oil brakeman residing in Oleum. His name could not be ascertained up to a late hour last night.

C. B. EVANS CHOSEN ON COMMISSION

C. B. Evans was last night elected by the Water Commission to fill the vacancy upon the commission caused by the resignation of Levi Boswell. Other than that, only routine business of minor importance was transacted.

$14,000,000 SUITS ARE DISMISSED

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 10.—Suits to recover $14,000,000 from directors and former directors of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad were dismissed in the Federal court here this afternoon.

WILL ENTERTAIN HIS PARISHONERS

OUTSIDE TALENT COMES TO AID IN CELEBRATION

Members and friends of the First Presbyterian church will be guests of Rev. G. A. White Friday evening at a reception. Rev. Mr. White inaugurated the annual reception for his pastorate to get the people better acquainted and to develop the social side of the church life.

The program of entertainment will be given by friends of the pastor from neighboring cities.

The program will be in part as follows: Song, by the congregation; prayer, by S. S. Ripley; solo, by Miss Helen Vollmer; reading, with violin accompaniment, by the O'Connell sisters; solo by H. L. Parks; instrumental solo, by Miss Cynthia Gibbons; solo, by Helen Vollmer; reading, by Rosalind O'Connell; solo, by Mr. Parks, and a violin solo by Geraldine O'Connell.

After the program a social time will be enjoyed, and refreshments will be served to the guests.

TEA AT McGREW HOME.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church will give a ten-cent tea this afternoon at the home of Mrs. McGrew, 421 Bissell avenue. The money will be used for the work of the church.

DAMAGE SUIT IS SETTLED OUT OF COURT

The injunction and damage suit of Edward Temperli against the Hutchinson company, the trial of which took up two weeks of Judge Latimer's court last June, has been settled out of court, the Hutchinson company buying up Temperli's land and giving him a life lease to the front part of the property.

The land adjoins the Hutchinson quarries near Stege and Temperli claimed that he was not only damaged to the extent of about $100,000, but that the quarry firm should be restrained from carrying on further blasting operations. Judge Latimer viewed the premises and while he was not called upon for a judgment intimated that damages of from $250 to $500 would be ample. The price paid for the seven-acre tract has not been made public.

A. B. M'KENZIE TO PRESIDE OVER DEPT. NO. 1

The work of assigning trial cases to the second department of the Superior Court has been started Judge Latimer will be the presiding judge and will sit in Department No. 1. Judge-Elect McKenzie will preside over Department No. 2. The cases that have been partially disposed of by Judge Latimer will be kept in his court.

Judge Latimer will handle all the criminal cases and all jury cases until the second court is fitted up. He will also handle the probate court, leaving the bulk of the law and motion and civil work to the second court.

Germans--With Fresh Troops--On Offensive

Spy Is Shot In Tower of London--2,000 Enlist In One Day--Both Czar and Kaiser Claim Advances.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—Germans attacked with great violence and recklessness al laiong the line from Noyon to Dixmude. Fresh troops have been substituted for the battle-weary veterans. The seasoned troops are being withdrawn.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Officially announced that Charles Lody, alias Charles Inglis, found guilty of being a spy for Germany, was shot to death last Friday in the Tower of London. He was 33. He communicated certain official secrets to the Germans. He is the first man to be shot in England for espionage for centuries. He declared he was an American, having worked in Omaha and New York.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The German retreat from Belgium is becoming general.

Both Germany and Russia claim victory on the East Prussia frontier.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—A conference of theatrical men was held here to consider plans for taking the lid off the theaters, despite the war.

PARIS—In the battles around Lille 867 Austrial noblemen were killed.

LONDON—Rebel Boers were beaten near Pretoria November 8 with loss of 120.

LONDON—More than 2000 enlisted today. This is almost a record.

AID IS GIVEN KILLER OF NOTORIOUS GEORGE GRAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—"I can't do anything for you. Go away, damn you," snarled Geo. F. Gray of the contracting firm of Gray Brothers, San Francisco, yesterday, when Joseph Lococo asked him for the $17.50 wages coming to him for labor.

"I thought he was going to hit," explained Lococo, "and I shot him twice. Then I ran."

Gray Brothers have been notorious in the past for their treatment of employes. In 1909 Miss Caroline Brasch, cashier for the firm, was shot by a laborer named Cunningham, who had been denied his salary.

Lococo had two babies and a wife starving. He had tried for weeks to get that $17.50. He and his family lived in a two-room shack. Gray was rich.

The young Italian is now facing a murder charge, but the rent for the little shanty is paid up, food has been supplied for the two babies.

Lococo had to shot before any one would pay any attention to his poverty.

MRS. M. E. GREGORY DIES; FUNERAL AT 2:30 TODAY

Mrs. Mary Eleanor Gregory died yesterday morning after two years of suffering. She is the wife of Constable John H. Gregory and resided at 431 Twelfth street. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Ethel Sharman of Phoenix, Ariz., and Mrs. Edith Chandler of Niles, and a son, who is a foreman on the state highway.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 this afternoon. Rev. Calfee will officiate. Tomorrow at 10 the body will be shipped to Ione, Amador county. The funeral is being handled by Smallwood.

S. O. EMPLOYES' BAND WILL PLAY FOR PUBLIC

The Standard Oil Company's Employes' Band will make its initial bow to the public with a dance January 16 at East Shore Park.

The boys have been organized for five months, but have been keeping under cover while they developed lip for the cornet and got the right elbow swing on the trombone. They have been practicing Monday nights under the leadership of John Mills.

They intend now to burst out on the public with occasional concerts. They will alternate between Richmond and the west side if the weather stays mild. Otherwise they will play in a hall at the works, that has been thrown open for their use by the company. The band has twenty members.

NOTICE T. F. B. MEMBERS

Fraternal Brotherhood whist party is postponed until December 2 on account of the death of one of the members.

All T. F. B. members be present at 431 Twelfth street, Richmond, November 11, 1914, at 1:30 p. m.

FIRE DEPARTMENT IS KEPT BUSY ANSWERING ALARMS

Two fires of mysterious origin, both in buildings in which no one was living, and the last one plainly the work of an incendiary, according to Fire Chief Roy Le Moine, kept the Richmond fire department on the jump last night.

The first alarm came about 11 o'clock from station 64 at Pullman avenue and Cutting boulevard. Truck No. 2 raced to the fire, but by the time they arrived the building had already collapsed and the fire destroyed it out completely.

The burned building was the small cottage located on Stats street, between Monterey and Park. It was the home of Michael J. Joseph, a painter at the Pullman car shops. Neighbors told Chief Le Moine that none of the family had bene home for more than a week.

The second alarm was telephonde in by Officer Jennings before truck No. 2 returned from Pullman. No. 1 responded. The fire was in a large unoccupied house at 941 North Eighth street.

No. 2 returned and followed to the second alarm five minutes after No. 1, but with empty chemical tanks. No. 1 had the fireu nder control. The damage was slight.

"The fire was plainly set from the outside under the back stairway," said Chief Le Moine. The house at Pullman was too far gone to leave evidence as to how it was fired.

Le Moine will make further investigations today and place the matter in the hands of Charles Walker, chief of police, who has been investigating the origin of the fire at 332 South Third street, Monday morning, where a bundle of oled rags was found in the basement.

BLUE SKY LAW HAS CARRIED

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—Thanks to a majority of 44,290, turned in by Los Angeles county, the blue sky law has carried.

SLAYER WILL DIE FRIDAY

Ferrando Mammilito, slayer of John Smith, a Sunol storekeeper, will be taken to the death chamber at San Quentin today, preparatory to his execution, scheduled for Friday morning. Mammilito stabbed Smith to death at Sunol, Alameda county, November 6, 1912, following a quarrel over the theft of $20.

The war has closed down temporarily the big jute mill of San Quentin prison and its reopening depends upon the safe arrival about December 15 of a cargo of raw jute now coming under peril of capture by the German cruisers from the British port of Calcutta.

IN JAIL 40 DAYS JURY FREES HIM

Fred Sloane, charged with burglary, was yesterday acquitted by a jury in the Superior Court at Martinez. Sloane, unable to raise bail, lay in jail for forty days awaiting trial.

He was arrested in a Richmond store at night. His defense was that he was intoxicated when he entered the building.

INSPECTS NEW OIL REFINERY

H. H. Beers, chief construction engineer for the Shell oil syndicate, was in Martinez yesterday looking over the preliminary work on the first unit of the big refinery. The grading and building of the concrete retaining wall is now under way. This first unit will cost about $175,000. Other and larger units will be under construction shortly.

GRAVE CHARGE MAY BE RESULT OF NIGHT BRAWL SAYS ATTORNEY

Two Austrians to Receive Sentence Today for Disturbing the Peace--Lawyer to Press Prosecution.

Nick Davis and D. Bossiri will be sentenced by Judge Lindsey at 10 o'clock this morning for disturbing the peace. They were convicted yesterday, following a fight in an Austrial boarding house Monday night. Steve Pandich, charged with carrying concealed weapons, was discharged because there was insufficient evidence against him.

The courtroom looked like the mobilization of the Austrian army. Two witnesses had patched eyes and one had his nose held on by adhesive tape. Some said Davis and Bossiri had started out with a long knife to kill another Austrian.

Both the accused admitted they were drunk and might have made some noise.

Attorney W. S. Robenson, representing the prosecuting faction, announced that his clients would lodge a more serious charge against the two convicted men if they were given light police court sentences.

IT NEVER STARTS AT HOME.

Every city and hamlet in California is thrilling with sympathy for the Belgians and everywhere we hear the rattle of something more substantial. Thousands of dollars are being collected for a nation driven from home.

It is a praiseworthy project. Undoubtedly most of the people that are busying themselves with it are sincere. Undoubtedly the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, whatever we may think of that body at other times, is sincerely touched by the plight of the people across the water.

We don't want to knock the efforts of people to help unfortunates, but we can't help wondering why this charity fever is always for somebody miles and miles away from home!

We don't doubt for one moment that the Belgians are in crying need of assistance, but we can't get it through our heads why the chambers of commerce and these bank presidents and big business men never see anything closer home that needs fixing.

Where were these philanthropists while the militia was murdering women and children in Colorado?

Where were they when the Michigan mine workers were shot and beaten and starved?

Where were they in the unemployment troubles last year?

Charity doesn't ever seem to start at home. It starts thousands of miles away. When men are hungry and dirty on your front door step, there isn't anything inviting about their poverty, nor anything romantically tragic. It is revolting. Poverty always is.

So the philanthropists send their money to foreign lands and the beggar leaning against their front gate dies of hunger.

THE RED LIGHTS AND THE LAW.

Hundreds and hundreds of years ago the wise men were trying to solve a problem which still remains unsolved.

In 1914 the voters of California made an effort to do something towards solving that same ancient question. They decided that this state should try the redlight abatement law.

That law does away with segregated vice districts. Five days after the official count is completed, some time around the first of December, it will go into effect and the square miles of redlight districts in the cities of the state will cease to exist. That is, if the law isn't declared invalid when brought to a test.

In San Francisco alone, it is estimated, there are 800 prostitutes. The law, while it does away with the district, makes no provision for that 800.

Few of them can change their way of making a living. Industrially they are useless. Few families would hire a "reformed woman" for house work.

And yet they must live. The opponents of the measure declare that the scarlet women will ply their trade in all parts of the city instead of just one section. They declare that a recognized vice district is far better for the morals of a city than no district at all.

Supporters of the law declare that it is unthinkable that society should recognize redlight houses as a necessity. It is unlawful, they say, and for that reason should be done away with.

The club women of the state, one of the few bodies of people that are really trying to think, fought hard for the passage of the law. Big property owners, the interests, the vice trust, were horribly shocked at the very idea of cleaning out the districts.

The problem won't be solved for many years to come. It won't be solved any sooner than the problem of unemployment is. Some day we'll scratch the surface and find out that it is an economic question.

In our scheme of society, in which a man must fight for his bread and butter, must deprive another man if he would acquire himself, the male failures go to jail or into migratory labor, the women into houses of the scarlet lights.

And while we don't make any pretense of being able to solve a question that has been pondered for centuries with no result, we do know that a society that prevents large classes of men from marrying and denies women the right of earning their living honestly, MUST have something to do with it.

Anyway, we can watch the workings of the new law carefully. While it may not be entirely successful and satisfactory in big cities like San Francisco, it may prove entirely practicable in somewhat smaller cities.

We can find out how it works in Richmond.

A HAPPY MEETING

By EVERETT P. CLARKE

The case of the people against Jacob Severance, or Edward Todd, or a number of other names which might be applied to the prisoner, was called. The prosecuting attorney expected to prove that he was the notorious Jake Severance who had committeed any number of confidence games and was the slickest operator in that line in America. The trial was to come off in the county seat, where he had been captured working as a farmhand to escape those who were after him. It was at the height of the haying season, and the farmers were all endeavoring to get in their crops before the next rain. Consequently there was difficulty in making up a jury, for whenever a man had a valid excuse for not serving he availed himself of it. Finally the panel stuck at the twelfth juryman.

A farmer entered the courtroom and looked about him with that wild glance common among countrymen who find themselves in an unfamiliar position.

"Is this yere a reel estate offis?" he asked.

"No, it's a courtroom," replied the sheriff.

"Oh! I thort it was a reel estate offis. I want to buy a farm."

"Do you belong about here?"

"No. I come from Canada. I got tired livin' under the British flag, and I want to git property yere."

"I say, my friend, how would you like to help us out as a juryman? You will get a dollar a day for sitting still and doing nothing."

"I don't know nothin' about juries; I never sot on one."

The farmer was persuaded, and the jury was complete. When the prisoner was brought forth for trial he cast a sweeping glance over the twelve anxiously.

The man from Canada seemed uneasy in finding himself in a jury box and kept looking about him here and there as if he feared something awful was about to be sprung upon him.

"Jacob Severance, you are accused of"—

"I ain't Jacob Severance; I'm Tom Barker."

The farmer juryman at this was seen to start.

"Where do you hail from?"

"Ontario, Canada."

The farmer arose from his seat, looked fixedly at the prisoner and said:

"Is you the Tom Barker that run away with my darter?"

"I run away with a gal named Barker, but I never seen her dad."

"Mathildy Barker?"

"Yes, my wife's name's Mathildy."

"Whar's my darter?" asked the old man pathetically.

"She's to hum with the kids, while I am tryin' to make enough as farm help to keep 'em alive."

"Tell me whar I kin find her. I done her a big wrong when I told her she shouldn't marry a man I had never seen. Her mother has been most heartbroken since she went away and pinin' for her all the time."

The court business stood still while this dialogue was in progress. When it had come to this point the prosecuting attorney said:

"Your honor, I have no objection to this man taking the witness stand to clear up what has evidently been a mistake. But since he is a juryman he must be excused as such."

A new juryman was found, and the stranger took the witness stand. He told a pathetic story of how his only daughter, who was a schoolteacher across the international line, had written that she was going to marry one Tom Barker, a young farmer who was trying to pay for a farm he had bought mostly on credit. Her father objected to the match on the ground of poverty and tried to stop her by telling her that if she persisted in the matter she would never again be welcomed home. From that day he had never seen or heard from her. Then he broke down and wept.

Handkerchiefs appeared all over the courtroom.

"Your honor," said the lawyer who had the prisoner's case in charge, "this is evidently a case of mistaken identity. The man the police is looking for is a very different person from the prisoner. I move that the case be dismissed."

The judge, who noticed that the sympathies of all were with the poor farmer and his son-in-law, consented, and the case was taken off the docket. Then the farmer went up to his son-in-law, put out his hand and told him how sorry he was that he had taken such harsh measures with his daughter. "But," he added, "I've sold the farm for a good price, and I've come down yere to buy another. We'll settle among these good people, work the farm together, and when I'm gone Mahildy shall have it. Meanwhile there's plenty for all of us."

Half a dozen persons gathered around the speaker, all having farms they would sell—just to have him settle among them—but he said the first thing he would do was to go to his daughter. Then he would come back and look at the properties for sale. He left with his son-in-law, and neither of them returned. The son-in-law was the crook the police were after, and the father-in-law was another, the two having long worked their games together.

TO INSPECT PLAYGROUNDS

At 9 o'clock Sunday morning the members of the city council will go to Oakland, where they will be escorted about the city by Oakland's playground commission in automobiles. All of Oakland's modern playgrounds will be inspected.

The councilmen will endeavor to pick up some idea of what a city's playgrounds should be. They hope to apply some of the ideas to Richmond's playgrounds.

LABOR NEWS

"In unity there is strength, united we stand divided we fall."

GARMENT WORKERS ARE NOT RECOGNIZED

MEMBERS OF NEW TAILORS' UNION O. K'D

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—Delegates from the Tailors' Union were seated in the A. F. of L. convention today. They presented credentials from the Journeymen Tailors' International Union and not from Tailors' International Union, the new name of the organization, which is not recognized by the A. F. of L.

Delegates from the seceding faction of the Garment Workers' Union were not seated, despite protests.

P. H. McCarthy has introduced a resolution advocating a six-hour work day as a solution of the unemployed problem.

Andrew Furuseth has been appointed on a committee on the executive committee's report; P. H. McCarthy, committee on law; Paul Scharrenberg and A. J. Gallagher, committee on state organization.

The executive committee has recommended that all unions directly chartered by the A. F. of L. charge not less than $1 initiation fee and not more than $5, one-fourth of which to be paid to the A. F. of L. It also names a minimum of 60 cents for monthly dues.

125,000 LOSE JOBS IN PENN.

John Price Jackson, commissioner of labor of Pennsylvania, has found that in 802 manufacturing plants used as a basis for computation, 125,000 workers, or one-fourth of those employed in them, have lost their jobs. Figures were taken a year ago and again recently. It was found that an overwhelming majority were discharged within the past few months. A considerable number of workers, naturally, was not compelled to leave.

Jackson says that he believes the relative proportion of those losing their employment in tens of thousands of places he had no means of investigating is even greater.

The commissioner has come out in favor of the immediate establishment of employment bureaus, which in Europe, he says, are proving of undoubted merit in their operation.

STRIKE WON BY CARMEN IN 24 HOURS

After a 24-hours' strike, street car employes forced the traction company of Fort Smith, Ark., to recognize their newly formed union, which is now a 100 per cent organization. The local was formed September 27 by American Federation of Labor Organizer C. H. Miller and sixteen members were discharged immediately. The Central Trades Council held a mass meeting, which was attended by sympathizing citizens, who joined with the unionists in a request that the men be reinstated. Failing in this a strike was called. The company was refused guards and special police by the city commissioners and sheriff.

$50,000 SCHOOL PLANS READY

Plans and specifications for the new $50,000 school building to be erected at Main and Nadeau are at the Builders' Exchange today. Local contractors are making estimates preparatory to submitting bids. Bids will be opened November 30.

SPY SYSTEM IN GRAND RAPIDS FACTORIES

Trade unionists charge that a spy system that would do credit to the European armies is in force in Grand Rapids, Mich., and their official paper, the Observer, announces it will begin running a series of articles supported by affidavits, in which the system will be exposed. It is claimed that the spies became active immediately after the strike of furniture workers, when men were discharged for no particular reason, while in other instances they were discharged because of union affiliation and activity.

60,000 WORKERS TO PARADE ON FRIDAY IN PHILADELPHIA

The Philadelphia committee of unionists that arranged for the American Federation of Labor convention announce that a monster night parade, in honor of the event, will be held next Friday. It is believed 60,000 working men and women will be in line, as over 15,000 have already signified their intention to take part.

Another feature of the convention will be a label exhibit which will cover more than 25,000 square feet of floor space in the large convention hall. The products of the country's best known manufacturers will be shown at this time.

Unexpected results have followed the activities of the "labor forward" movement and new unions and increased membership lists of established organizations are everywhere reported.

SOCIALISTS OF RICHMOND FORMULATE A PEACE PLANK

Local Men Suggest Addition to National Platform of Party That Would Permit Direct Vote on War.

At the last meeting of the Socialist local of Richmond the following was suggested as an addition to the platform of the party. Resolutions advocating it were sent to the national headquarters of the party in Chicago:

1. The Socialist party demands that no war be begun by the United States government except by direct vote of the people.

2. That all foreign policies and relations be conducted by the United States Congress acting through a committee, and all foreign policies and relations be made public immediately.

The meeting of the local tomorrow evening will be of special importance. A visiting organizer will be present who, besides the usual party work, has a matter to present that is of special interest to all who are concerned about the high cost of living. All party members are requested to bep resent and all others to whom the subject appeals are invited to the Socialist hall Thursday evening.

COAL MINERS STRIKE IN KANSAS

PITTSBURG, Kan., Nov. 10.—One thousand men employed by the Cherokee & Pittsburg Coal and Mining Company struck today following the recommendation of the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America. The strike was called because the employers failed to abide by a section of a working agreement.

DICKENS' GREAT MYSTERY STORY IS SHOWN IN MOVING PICTURES

It is a story without an ending that is told by the films at the Richmond theater today and tomorrow for the uncompleted tale of Charles Dickens, known as "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," will feature the program.

The Shubert company has selected Tom Terriss to play the important part of Edwin Drood. The story tells of Edwin Drood and Rosa Budd's engagement. Then John Jasper, a young uncle of Edwin Drood, becomes madly infatuated with the girl.

Drood and Rosa are not in love with each other, but are marrying to suit their parents. There is a quarrel at the Drood house one night and afterward Drood is missing. The story stops while various theories as to what has become of Drood are being aired.

Charles Dickens died before finishing the story, so various authors have tried to do the work for him. Their theories are also shown.

Another feature is a Keystone comedy, "Mabel's Married Life." It is certainly a laugh producer.

ADS ARE POPULAR READING

A newspaper's information is so varied it contains news to suit everyone. Some years ago a person who read the ads in the newspaper or a magazine was considered odd, and it is true the ads were crude, the articles advertised often being out of season or of a style and texture entirely out of fashion. But now it is different. Advertising furnishes the most interesting reading matter in the newspaper. It is instructive, teaching the public how to reduce the cost of living and at the same time get the best standard goods.

If you don't already read ads—get the habit—it's a liberal education.

RIGHTS OF LABOR.

The point is that, as a result of the decisions of courts, the labor unions are today existing in violation of law and by the mere sufferance of the department of justice. This is a situation which should not be tolerated. It is no longer a mooted question that organized labor properly directed performs a highly beneficent purpose in our economic system and is a dominating force in the conservation of human life and energy and of the future of the race. No one would contend today that it should be under the ban of the law, although it is not so many years since such contentions received serious attention.

There is no reason why labor should not have the same right to combine to meet such combinations of capital, yet it has been denied that right by the construction placed upon the law, which it is now sought to correct.—Samuel Untermyer.

A Lover's Test

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

About a century ago a crown prince of Prussia was in the matrimonial market. One day a Prussian deputation called on the reigning duke of one of the smaller of the German states and made a proposal for the hand of the duke's youngest daughter, Elsa, then nineteen years old. Her father, astonished and delighted at being so honored, went at once to communicate the news to his daughter, Elsa received it without the transports exhibited by her father.

"I am disappointed," she said, "for I have always supposed that not enough princes of the blood would be found for my older sisters and that I would be permitted to marry, if at all, for love. I will not wed the prince."

Her father argued and stormed, but could only secure his daughter's consent to the wedding on condition that she spend some time in Berlin that she might become acquainted with the prince and if he did not please her she could break the betrothal. Since her father must accept this condition or send a refusal to the king of Prussia he consented to it.

The crown prince pleased Elsa very much with his personality, but did not show her the attention she had a right to expect from a fiance. There were many gallants at the Prussian court, and the princess accepted the attentions of those who were sufficiently impolitic to wire them, for it was not expected that any man would devote himself to the betrothed of the heir apparent. Count Caspar Audenreid was one who seemed willing to trespass on the royal domain, and his attentions being accepted it was not long before the matter began to excite comment.

Meanwhile the crown prince, who took an interest in state affairs, busied himself with them and when at leisure, instead of seeking the company of his betrothed, devoted himself to other women. He did not seem to notice Count Caspar's attentions to Elsa, or if he did they did not seem to trouble him.

Elsa was piqued by his indifference. She did not love the count or any of the other courtiers who paid her attention. Indeed, she was much cut up because the prince slighted her. At last she concluded to withdraw from Berlin and on reaching her own home compel her father to send word to the king of Prussia that his daughter had informed herself of the crown prince's desirability and that she had not been sufficiently well pleased with him to marry him.

Elsa was aware that her leaving Berlin would be interpreted to mean that she had refused the heir apparent to the throne, which would be considered an insult to the Prussian court and nation. She therefore determined to depart secretly or at any rate without leave.

One night a carriage stood waiting at a doorway directly below her apartments in the palace. The princess, veiled, descended, entered the vehicle and was driven away.

On reaching a wooded spot some distance from the city the carriage was stopped and the door opened by a masked man.

"Pardon me, your highness," he said, "I am looking for one whom I expected to be with you."

"And who may he be?"

"Count Caspar Audenreid."

"And pray what interest is Count Audenreid to you?"

"None to me personally, but as one who has insulted my master, the crown prince, he is a good deal of interest to me. I desire to avenge that insult."

"You mean that his royal highness is indifferent to his loss, but extremely sensitive to his dignity."

"As to that the prince must speak for himself."

"I have no desire to hear him on the subject, so I presume you will permit me to go on."

"But perhaps my master may desire to apologize for his neglect of one for whose hand he had proposed."

"In that case it is not necessary that I should return to Berlin."

"Why not?"

"He stands before me."

"How have you been able to recognize me?"

"I would know you through any disguise."

"May I ask where you are going?"

"Home."

"Why are you leaving Berlin?"

"Because I will marry no man who treats me with indifference."

"And you are not accompanied by Count Audenreid?"

"That you can see for yourself."

"Will you give me another trial?"

"Not in Berlin. I shall be happy to receive you at my father's capital."

"May I accompany you?"

Elsa hesitated. A change had evidently come over her betrothed. Her departure would doubtless occasion a great deal of talk and trouble.

"You may," she said.

The prince entered the vehicle, and it was driven on.

"You came to Berlin," he said, "to look me over. I have been to your home incognito to look you over. I selected you among the other princesses of Europe because I fell in love with you."

"Then why did you treat me with such indifference?"

"To learn if it troubled you. But you have been a match for me. I believed you loved Audenreid."

"I love only the crown prince."

WAGES SURE TO RISE.

Increasing Cost of Living Must Result in Higher Pay.

The laborer to an appreciable extent is controlled in his requirement for wages by house rents and the retail prices of food, both of which are largely subject to the pressure of taxation, which in this country falls primarily upon real estate. A living wage means enough to pay the rent and provide food, raiment and other necessaries for a family.

There is no reliable official tabulation which includes dimensions of rooms, proximity of trolley lines, etc. But it is a well known fact that apartment house rents in all centers of labor have steadily increased. It is equally notorious that the prices of food and of many other necessaries of life have increased and are still increasing. The palpable cause is excessive taxation.

The federal government is expending over a billion dollars a year, exclusive of the postal system; the states and municipalities three billions more, the city of New York alone expending a quarter of a billion a year, while at the present moment eighty-two millions in gold are being exported to meet its maturing obligations in Europe. Two-thirds of these colossal sums of expenditure are collected from taxes upon real estate, while real estate exacts them in turn from its tenants, the majority of whom are laborers.

There seems no escape from the conviction that so long as these expenditures continue wages will rise—slowly, fitfully, after much resistance (for employers, too, must live and respond to the demands of their trades), after many strikes. But in spite of all wages under such conditions will rise, and the contractor who omits to contemplate this contingency must be prepared to run the risk of being much mistaken. Taxation is no negligible factor in the adjustment of contract prices.—Alex Del Mar in Engineering Magazine.

Doomed to Failure.

It is an encouraging sign of the times that the bluff labor unions started by employers for the purpose of defeating legitimate labor organizations are disappearing. Such bluff organizations were foredoomed to failure. The increasing intelligence of the wage earning class must insure that result. The proved impotence of this and other schemes of union hating employers in trying to prevent the organization of labor gives added encouragement and should enthuse the efforts of organized labor to reach the 3,000,000 mark which President Gompers has set as the next milestone in the onward march of labor.

Favor Labor Union Bank.

Resolutions approving a central labor union bank in Indianapolis and authorizing the appointment of a committee to confer with representatives of other national labor organizations for working out the details of the plan were adopted in convention at Peoria recently by the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers. Twenty-seven labor organizations maintain headquarters in Indianapolis.

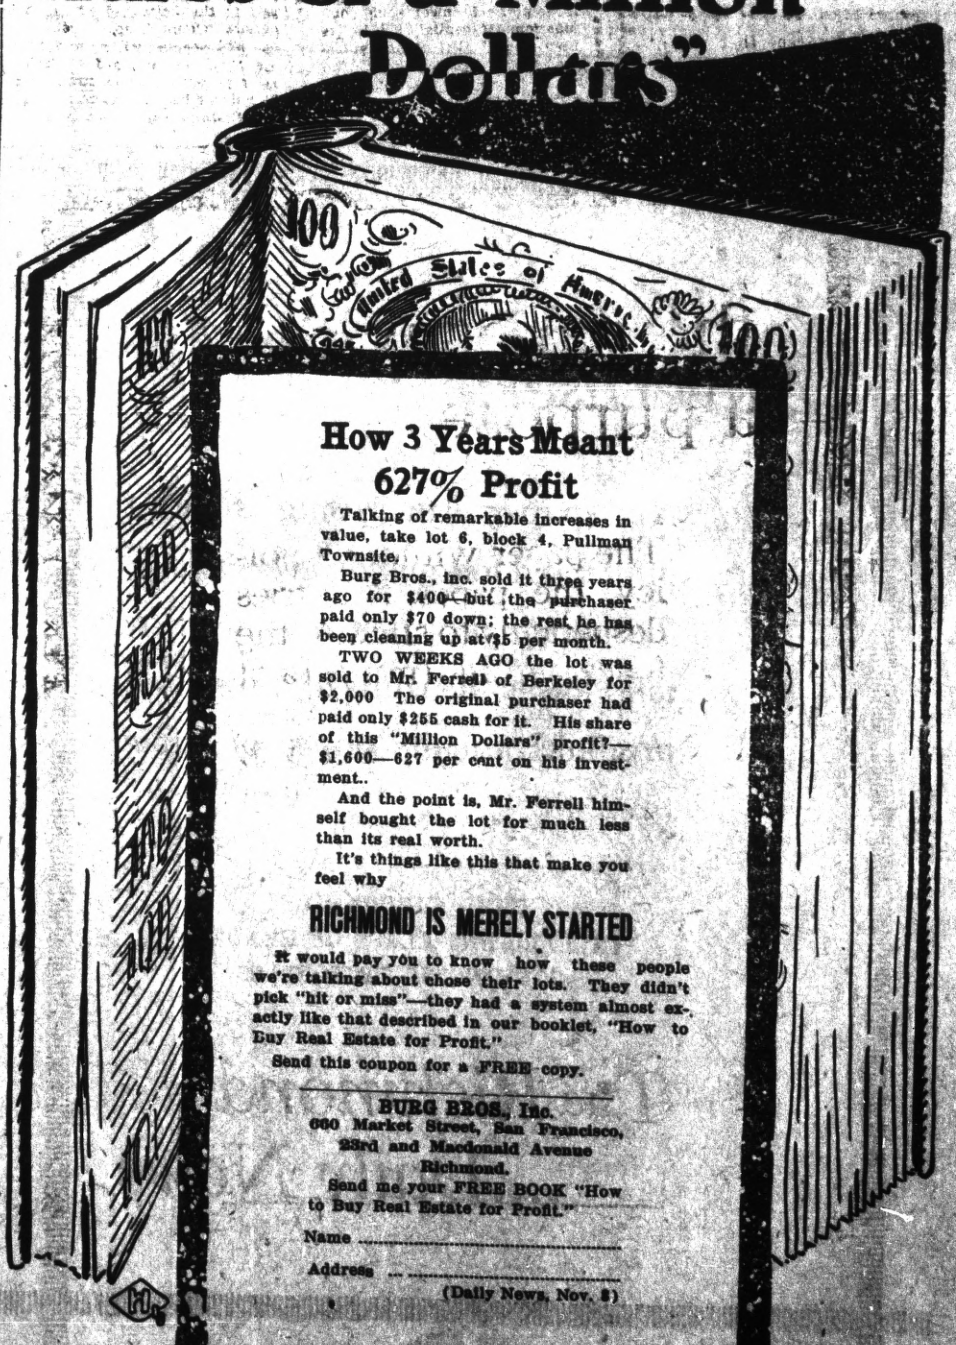
"Tales of a Million Dollars"



How 3 Years Meant 627% Profit

Talking of remarkable increases in value, take lot 6, block 4, Pullman Townsite.

Burg Bros., inc. sold it three years ago for $400—but the purchaser paid only $70 down; the rest he has been cleaning up at $5 per month.

TWO WEEKS AGO the lot was sold to Mr. Ferrell of Berkeley for $2,000. The original purchaser had paid only $255 cash for it. His share of this "Million Dollars" profit?—$1,600—627 per cent on his investment.

And the point is, Mr. Ferrell himself bought the lot for much less than its real worth.

WE WON'T PLAY IN THE NEW LEAGUE

LUCE WILL LOOK FOR FASTER BOYS

FORT McDOWELL WILL MARCH ON ELKS SUNDAY

The Richmond Elks will not play in the newly formed Midwinter League.

Manager Luce made that announcement definitely yesterday after a careful consideration of the situation. Instead, the Elks will continue to be matched against clubs carrying high-class talent, and the fans will get to see a good game every Sunday as long as the weather allows the great national game to be continued.

Luce was elected a director in the new league without his previous knowledge or consent.

WEAK TEAMS IN LEAGUE.

"After going over the whole situation very carefully I decided we had best stay out of the league," he said last night. "There are three or four strong teams in the league, but the others are weak. As soon as we had a poorly played game or two the fans would quit us and the league would be a failure.

"We have decided to be free agents and choose our games with teams that will give the fans what they want. We will play the Fort McDowell team from San Francisco next Sunday. We will probably take on the All-Stars the Sunday after that."

SOLDIERS COME SUNDAY.

While the newly formed Midwinter League won't be a half bad bunch of talent, Manager Bill made a pretty wise decision when he decided to remain untied and pick the opponents for the Elks. At this season of the year when all kinds of big league stars have fled from the Eastern snow storms to sunny California, there are a lot of teams that will give the fans more than their money's worth each Sunday.

The Fort McDowell team has been little heard of around here, but is touted to carry a speedy gang. The All-Stars are largely a bunch of P. C. L. boys, and according to the form chart, ought to trim our Elks. If the Elks keep up the gait they have traveled lately, however, the dope will likely be upset.

THEY'RE BALL PLAYERS.

At that, they will have a day's work cut out for them when they tangle with the Fort McDowell bunch next Sunday. Barnes, who does the slab work for the soldiers, has been signed by McCredie to eat with the Portland Beavers next season. The rest of the bunch claim to size up with their pitcher.

The bunch has whipped San Rafael, Modesto, a number of Frisco semi-pro. clubs, and they gave the Oaks a close rub at the first of the year.

They will go into action as follows: Barnes, pitcher; Detchell, catcher; Arbough, first base; Parker, second base; Riden, third base; Tedan, shortstop; Ogden, left field; Mosher, center field; Miller, right field.

ABOUT THE NUT column, Mike?
DON'T you recognize
REAL HIGH-BROW literary stuff
WHEN you see it
IN BIG type?
WELL, I don't wonder
THAT MIKE was glad
TO SEE Klumner take
THAT horse away.
THAT prize horse
DEVELOPED such an appetite
IT ATE ALL the hay in town,
AND DAN KELLY,
THE HANDSOME son of Erin,
WITH THE black moustache,
WENT OUT and bought
THE hungry horse
A BOX OF shredded wheat biscuits
AND A BUSHEL of grape nuts.
BUT IT ONLY lasted one meal.
AND ED CARLSON, the grocer,
SENT OVER a lot
OF excelsior
THAT WAS wrapped around
A SHIPMENT of goods.
WHEN THAT ran out
JOHNNY PERES whittled shavings
FOR THE horse to eat
UNTIL he ran out
OF CIGAR boxes.
THEN BUD WRIGHT fixed up a plot
TO STEAL the big pumpkin
THAT MARTIN KELLY
KEEPS in his window
AND CLAIMS Cy Perkins raised
ON HIS Watsonville ranch.
"THAT PUMPKIN," said Bud,
"WILL hold that animal's appetite AWHILE, I guess!"
BUT OTTO LUDEWIG, our councilman,
HEARD about the trouble,
AND said,
"WHY DON'T you fix that horse
LIKE I DID my fish?
DIDN'T you see him
IN THE window
FROZEN in that block of ice?
IT DOESN'T COST me a cent
TO FEED him
AND whenever I want to go fishing
I THAW him out
AND CATCH HIM again.
JUST FREEZE the horse
IN A block of ice
WITH a bunch of hay
IN FRONT of him
TO look at
AND SET HIM in the window
AND HE'LL keep
IN perfect shape
TILL THE winner
CALLS for him."
BUT JUST THEN Klumner
CAME along
WITH the lucky ticket.
THE JOKE was on Mike
FOR about a week.
BUT now it looks
LIKE A HORSE on Klumner.

LEAGUE FINISHES WITH BARBECUE

ENAMELERS WILL TRY TO TEAR THE ROOF OFF THOSE MOLDER BOYS

RICHMOND MIDWINTER LEAGUE.

Standing of Clubs.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Redmen	4	2	.667
Outlaws	3	2	.600
Winehaven	3	3	.500
Athletes	1	4	.200

The championship of the Midwinter League will be decided next Sunday, when the Redmen and the Outlaws fight it out for supremacy on Cheek's grounds at Tenth and Lucas. The teams are tied at present, so it will be the final game of the league. The "Play ball" order is scheduled to sound at 2:30.

The Calwas will meet the Point Athletes for the cellar championship the same day at the west side grounds.

Preceding the Redmen-Outlaw fracas on the Cheek farm there will be a death struggle for the baseball honors of the Pacific Sanitary Works, between the Molders and the Enamelers. Spires and A. Moitoza will be on the firing line for the Enamelers and Bourd and Cassidy are slated to oppose them. They are scheduled to run up the flag and start firing when the clock strikes noon.

To add to the festivities, Manager Cheek will give a barbecue banquet in honor of his Outlaws. He has it all doped out that he is doing it for the champs of the league. The Redmen, however, are certain that Cheek is working on a bum hunch about that championship stuff.

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE, BOYS, GET TOGETHER ON THEM THERE GAMES

The overworked Sporting Editor of the Daily News suggests that each of the clubs in the Richmond Midwinter League appoints a press agent, said p. a. to file a sworn statement with the Sporting Editor at the close of each game.

Monday night some friend assured us that the Redmen trimmed the Athletes 13 to 3 last Sunday. We printed it that way. Tuesday another friend left a notice that reads:

	R.	H.	E.
Redmen	14	20	2
Athletes	2	5	7

Batteries—Bradley and Schramm; Miller and Montoreria.

Said report also differed from the report sent in Monday on the number of hits and errors in the Outlaw-Winehaven game. Monday had Moltoza catching for the Outlaws and Tuesday had some one by the name of Caley, or Codey, or something like that, doing the receiving.

Just to prove that we are a square guy and want to give everybody a fair shake, we printed both reports. This gives our subscribers eight games instead of four and we have not raised the subscription price.

The Sporting Editor would like to attend all the ball games and railroad wrecks and social affairs personally on Sunday, but as he hits the hay that morning somewhere between 3 and 5 p. m., and Sunday is his only day off, he has to trust to friends for some of his news.

Lots of people still wonder why newspaper men are such liars and why they all die young!

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES BY SCOOP

The first assembly since the suspension of the five student officials was held yesterday. The matter of the alumni game was taken up and after vigorous discussion was called off. L. Gerlach, recently returned from the Orient, made a speech in favor of holding the game. That brought up last year's rugby game and Gerlach said that the teams had enjoyed playing in the mud that covered the field.

This was disputed by other members of the team, who declared that if it rained they would strike. However, the real reason for abandoning the proposed game was that it would interfere with basketball practice.

TWO PARTIES AND A RALLY.

The assembly also decided to have two parties and a rally between now and Christmas. It is probable that the rally will be held soon and the first party just before Thanksgiving. The other party will be held about December 11.

Social activities have been rather lax on account of the rigorous football schedule, but now the dancers are assured of a good time to complete the semester.

SENATE MEETS TONIGHT.

The Senate debating club will meet tonight. The question of remaining in the California Extension League will be brought up. The recent meeting showed a lack of seasoned debaters and it is probable that the body will not continue its membership in the U. S. League.

J. H. Duus, cement contractor, who has been laid up for about three weeks with an attack of rheumatism, has improved so that he is back on the job again superintending the cement foundation work on the new Slattery building, Seventh and Macdonald. The cement work will be finished in a few days and the brick work started by Contractor Penry.

"SOB SISTER" AT LYRIC THEATRE

Tonight at the Lyric theater a gripping story of newspaper life will be shown on the screen. It is called "The Sobsister," and is a compelling exposition of the thrills of big city journalism.

Helen Tracy, daughter of the managing editor of the Times, runs away from boarding school and comes to the city. The newspaper gets a "tip" on the story and the "Sib Sister" is assigned to the story. She gets the story after a number of complications, and, knowing that the girl is a daughter of the editor, attempts to persuade him not to use it. He not knowing who the girl is, orders the story written. When he finds out that it is his own daughter he is making notorious he orders the presses stopped.

It is keenly interesting.

ADS ARE POPULAR READING.

A newspaper's informtion ais so varied it contains news to suit everyone. Some years ago a person who read the ads in a newspaper or magazine was considered odd, and it is true the ads were crude, the articles advertised often being out of season or of a style and texture entirely out of fashion. But now it is different. Advertising furnishes the most interesting reading matter in the newspaper. It is instructive, teaching the public how to reduce the cost of living and at the same time get the best standard goods.

WIN TEN STRIKES OUT OF TOTAL OF ELEVEN

The Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America has 212 agreements with as many corporations. The last report of the general executive board shows that out of eleven strikes only one was lost. Another encouraging feature is the statement that only $13,735 has been paid out in strike and lockout benefits during the six months covered by the report, and that during the same timeo ver 8000 new members had bene enrolled. Large numbers of controversies have been settled either by mediation or arbitration.

WRIGHT LEAVES BENCH.

Judge Who Sentenced Labor Leaders Resigns From Office.

Justice Daniel Thew Wright of the supreme court of the District of Columbia has handed his resignation to President Wilson, to take effect Nov. 15.

The congressional impeachment investigation that has been conducted for some time as to the judicial fitness of Justice Wright will probably be dropped.

As the committee on judiciary established a precedent a few years ago in the case of a western judge who resigned while impeachment charges were pending, the same course will probably be followed in this case.

Justice Wright attracted attention of a certain kind because of his judicial bearing at the trials and when sentencing President Gompers, Vice President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor to one year, nine months and six months in jail, respectively, because of an alleged violation of an injunction issued by Judge Gould in the Bucks Stove and Range company case. In passing sentence Justice Wright was most bitter and abusive in speech.

When the United States supreme court set these verdicts aside and ordered the case remanded for trial "without prejudice" Justice Wright gave an exhibition of his "judicial temperament" by his appointment of three lawyers who were ordered to investigate and report whether there was "reasonable ground to believe" that the defendants had violated the injunction. The three lawyers had served as prosecutors of the trade unionists in the first case.

CONVICT LABOR PROBLEM.

Minnesota Labor Federation Suggests a Feasible Solution.

The solution of the convict labor problem urged by the Minnesota State Federation of Labor is attracting general attention. Summarized, the plan is:

First.—Work on public domain where the laborer or convict can be utilized in road building and land reclamation.

Second.—The securing by the state of sufficient land for the operation of penal farms, the products of which shall not be sold in the open market, but shall be sold exclusively to the penal, correctional and charitable institutions of the state and of the various state subdivisions.

Third.—For those prisoners whom it will be impossible and unwise to employ in either of the foregoing directions it is recommended that industries be established within the prisons whose products shall be sold exclusively to the state and its subdivisions and the profits from all sales over and above the cost of maintaining the industries or farms or road building to be devoted to the support of the prisoners' families.

Labor Bears the Burden.

The burden of war rests upon labor. Those who produce the necessaries must work to provide those necessaries for those who have stopped production to engage in warfare. Every wage earner in America must pay more for flour because of the disturbance in Europe, and nearly every other necessary of life is likewise affected. The working people not only furnish the men to shoot and the men to be shot, but they must pay all the bills besides.

Freight Handlers Get Busy.

The freight handlers have started an organizing campaign to extend throughout New England. It has been decided, after investigation, that this is an opportune time to pursue an active organizing campaign, and every effort will be put forth to enroll a large membership.
